I am a strongly motivated individual, determined to learn, adapt and evolve personally as well as professionally. In all aspects of life, I consistently strive to achieve the highest and best result possible with any challenge that may come my way. I believe that innovation and progress are the keys to achieving success. Together with my lifelong commitment to scientific learning, research and teaching, I believe that knowledge should be constantly pursued and shared. I possess a strong conviction in multiculturalism and believe in the many benefits of bringing people of diverse backgrounds together. The advantages of people learning from each other, sharing their knowledge with one another and expanding their understanding of the world is not only amazingly fun but highly profitable when new knowledge is brought to the table.
